Bus Stop Versus Parking Conflict Ends in Stalemate

by Diane Oberg

In the most recent conflict between parking and bus stops, parking won, at least for the time being. As the vote neared, Mayor Judith Davis' frustration was clear. "It's interesting how we change," she said. "Council members say, let's make sure people can have access to public transportation." By taking no action at that night's meeting, she said, council had maintained a situation where disabled people "cannot get to the bus without practically crawling."

The issue, at the November 22 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council, was how to balance the competing needs of motorists, residents and bus riders regarding the bus stop located on southbound Southway (heading towards Ridge Road) at Crescent Road opposite the Municipal Building. Currently three parking places are located in front of the bus stop. When filled, these spaces prevent buses from pulling to the curb. Their standing away from the curb blocks motorists attempting to turn onto Southway to reach the Baltimore Washington Parkway and Greenbelt Road.

Bus riders must walk between the parked cars to get to the bus, which can be particularly difficult for people with mobility limitations. It also limits the usefulness of the "kneeling" feature of Metrobuses, which is fully effective only when the bus is right next to the curb.

To get feedback on the problem, the city sent a survey to residents of the 1 and 2 Courts of Southway. Only three residents returned the survey, two of whom opposed eliminating parking at the bus stop. City staff noted that parking near the corner of Southway and Crescent Road is "at a premium," that no accidents have occurred there and that similar situations exist at other bus stops in the city. In the absence of consensus among the city staff regarding what, if any, action should be taken, City Manager Michael McLaughlin proposed prohibiting parking at the bus stop between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. for a six month trial period.

In the end, council also reached no agreement about what action should be taken. On a 4-1 vote with Davis opposed, council sent the issue back to staff with directions to look at other approaches. Councilmembers Thomas White, Edward Putens, Rodney Roberts and Alan Turnbull opposed eliminating parking in that area without consideration of other possible approaches. Davis favored giving McLaughlin's proposal a try.

Jaeger Tract Development Project in State of Flux

by Elaine Skolnik

The Jaeger tract saga is currently adding another chapter to its long and complicated history. Situated east of Kenilworth Avenue and jutting into the 1,100 acre Greenbelt Park like two massive horns of a bull, the Jaeger tract returns to the spotlight because AD and C Management Company (ADC), a New York-based firm, is studying the feasibility of developing the two remaining tracts (17.4 and 3.7 acres) of the 76.57 acre Jaeger property.

Already housed on almost 56 acres of the property are the two high-rise apartment towers of Westchester Park — one with 308 condominium units; the other with 303 rental units — and 226 two and three-level condominium townhouse/apartment units.

Since September, ADC has presented several visions for the remaining 17.4 and 3.7 acre properties. The company has not yet purchased the two sites from the seller, Chevy Chase Bank, administrators for the Jaeger Estate. In a letter to their attorney, Russell Shipley, of the law firm of Shipley & Horne, ADC partners said, "We have informed them (the sellers) that we are willing to renegotiate the contract based on a new proposed development plan. In order to come to a final commitment with the sellers and have an immediate closing as the sellers are requesting, we would need a gesture of support from the Civic Groups of Westchester Park for the new proposed development plan."

The latest plan calls for 35 single family detached homes on the 17.4-acre parcel, which is zoned Rural Residential (RR: two units an acre). According to ADC, "These homes will be more of the larger custom type homes." An earlier proposal that was later taken off the drawing board called for 17 townhomes and 46 detached single family dwellings under the Comprehensive Design Zone/Residential Medium. Although this zone is allowed under the 1990 College Park, Langley Park, Greenbelt Master Plan and Sectional Map Amendment, a lengthy process of rezoning the tract from the existing RR zone to the Comprehensive Design Zone would be required.

ADC also requested "a gesture of support" for the 3.7-acre parcel located between the condominium townhome/apartment development and the 6100 Towers condominium building. The company proposes the development of two adult buildings totaling 60 units.

ERHS Again Gets National Recognition

Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) and its principal, Dr. Gerald L. Boarman, received more honors at a White House presentation ceremony on November 19. ERHS is one of 13 schools designated as 1999 New American High Schools by the U.S. Department of Education (DOE) throughout the country this year. Seventeen other schools have been previously honored in 1996 and 1998. ERHS adds this recognition to two previous national recognitions as a Blue Ribbon School.

The New American High School initiative identifies leading-edge high schools from across the nation that have dramatically improved the quality of education for all students and assists other schools in that endeavor. "These New American High Schools are setting a new standard of excellence for all students," said U. S. Secretary of Education Richard Riley. "Their extraordinary reform efforts are grounded in classroom innovation, breakthrough instructional methods, imaginative technology use, and partnerships with colleges and communities."

New Year 2000 Plans Are Biggest & Best Yet

by Patti Brothers

Those who haven't already made plans for bringing in the new year, and also the new century, can join friends and neighbors at Greenbelt New Year 2000, a once-in-a-lifetime celebration. Many volunteers have been involved in planning this very special, expanded event, which begins at 6 p.m. on Braden Field with a fireworks display.

The evening's activities will then move indoors at five different locations. The Community Center will host the great rhythm and sounds of Trinidad and Tobago — wear your island apparel! Kaydee Puppets will delight the audience with wonderful "let your imagination take you away" puppet shows. Bridges to Bliss will entertain the entire family with their fun, whimsical songs. Dave Schulman will demonstrate his great juggling, how-does-he-keep-all-those things-up-in-the-air skills. The children's craft room, run by Barbara Simon, will be open once again for a night full of creativity. For those who feel like dancing, Blackberry will play their toe-tapping, get-your-feet-moving Cajun music, opening with a dance lesson. John Hill will provide the party goes with a full night of music from his acoustic guitar and wonderful voice. The Futures & Fortunes Gift Shop and the artist's studios will also be open for your shopping pleasure. DC motors will begin the final celebration and ring in the New Year in fine style with their great, nonstop sounds that span the last four decades.

Youth Center

The Youth Center will have lots of "get involved" activities for everyone — sumo wrestling (can you get up once you fall down?), an obstacle course (try to out-run your neighbor) and a karaoke DJ who will provide (See NEW YEAR, page 10)

Greenbelt Places 4th In County Snow Rodeo

by Barry Bernstein

The Greenbelt Public Works Department co-sponsored a snow rodeo at Redskins Stadium with the county's Public Works Department on October 27. The event was also sponsored by the Council of Governments (COG), Local Government Insurance Fund (LGIT), and Injured Workers Insurance Fund (IWIF).

The city of Greenbelt initiated the idea of this year's snow rodeo as early as last January, which gained interest from the county. The last snow rodeo took place three or four years ago because interest lapsed. Next year, the city would like to have a smaller rodeo in Greenbelt.

"It is good for the morale of city workers," Bill Phelan, Greenbelt horticulturist, said.

The three different competitions comprising the rodeo included a circle of safety which was a safety check of a dump truck's brake system, lighting system, etc.; a written test of a Maryland motor vehicle law; and an obstacle course which was a drive through with barrels and barricades. Total points for over 15 jurisdictions including Washington National Airport were added up after all three events were completed. Large and small jurisdictions competed in different events. Greenbelt placed fourth of seven teams in the smaller jurisdiction events.

Highly Satisfying

Our congratulations to the Greenbelt Metro station Sector Planning Group for producing a preferred concept plan for the land at and next to the Metro station.

For over two years these citizens and community leaders from Berwyn Heights, College Park and Greenbelt voluntarily gave up a number of Saturdays and many evenings to put together the concept plan. The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission planning staff who worked with them were very pleased with their work. Considering the diverse points of view of those participating, achieving consensus is a true accomplishment. We hope that the plan will become a useful guide to both the developers and the county officials.

We also commend two of this paper's dedicated reporters, Virginia Beauchamp and Elaine Skolnik, who gave up much of their time to cover and report on the doings of the Sector Planning Group. We believe that this paper is the only area newspaper to have provided comprehensive coverage of this important planning exercise. Virginia's and Elaine's willingness to attend these many long meetings made this outcome possible.

We Need to Know More

Although we have serious reservations about building a full interchange of the Capital Beltway at the Greenbelt Metro Station, we think that the Greenbelt City Council acted prematurely in opposing it. The proposed interchange would also serve the proposed Metroland Development and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) administrative center. Until land use around the station is determined, the need for the interchange cannot be assessed. Before we say no to an interchange, we want to know the effect on development and on traffic in Greenbelt. Those who think that denying an interchange will prevent development in this area are burying their heads in the sand.

At the same time, we do question the merits of building a full interchange: i.e., an interchange with ramps to provide access to the Metro site from and to the east, as well as full Beltway access to the USDA. We are not satisfied with the answers that have been given to many important questions:

How will environmentally sensitive lands in the area be protected?

What are the visual and physical impacts of a design that has ramps crossing the Metro Yard and CSX tracks while connecting to a road that runs beside the railroad tracks, that is to go under the Beltway?

Will building a full interchange put more traffic on an already overcrowded Beltway, instead of promoting mass transit?

Lastly, should Maryland taxpayers bear the cost of this expensive structure when it appears to primarily benefit a private developer?

Please Help!

On November 21, Sunday, at about 5:30, we were walking our dog, Zany, behind the GHI offices in the woods. Zany was chasing deer and having a great time, like she has many other times. Except this time she ran deep into the woods and must have gotten turned around in the dark.

We searched and searched for her. We talked to many residents that back to the woods. Some reported seeing her. We put up signs offering a reward of $100.

We still have not found our dog. Zany is part of our family. We miss her, we love her and we desperately want her back.

Please, if you have her, return her. Zany's kid Nick (age 9) is very sad. Zany is a black Lab, 1 1/2 years old, very friendly, 82 lbs. She had a purple collar. 301-614-3553.

Thank you.

OBITUARY

Howard Kash

Howard Kash died suddenly on Sunday, December 5 in his home in Greenbelt. He was 73 years old.

Mr. Kash lived in Greenbelt since 1957 because, as he often said, it was the only place he'd want to raise his children. His respect and affection for the town, its beauty, its active citizenry, and its enduring principles, were foundation stones of his life for over 40 years.

He was happy, optimistic, and kind, and worked energetically in the local real estate business that he built, nurtured, and loved until the day he died.

A World War II decorated veteran, he was a graduate of the University of Kentucky.

He is survived by Fannabell Kash, his wife of 52 years; daughters Lesley Kash, who serves abroad in the Foreign Service with her husband Hank Meyer, and Kim Kash who lives in Greenbelt with her husband Michael Cooney; and his sister, Mary Jane Arthur of San Diego, CA.

Services are private. Donations may be sent to the University of Kentucky Alumni Association, Sturgill Development Building, Lexington, KY 40506-0015.

Is Christmas coming too fast for you? Slow down with Advent!

The Christmas season seems to start sooner every year. Many stores put up Christmas decorations the day after Halloween! We are pressured to engage in a two-month spending frenzy. The anxiety builds as the shopping days dwindle. So many gifts that still need to be bought! So many parties to attend! So many family gatherings to plan! No wonder we often feel deflated when Christmas Day finally arrives!

There is an alternative. For thousands of years Christian people have observed the four weeks before Christmas as the season of Advent. This is a time of quiet, spiritual reflection—during which we prepare for the coming of God into the world as a human being named Jesus.

We invite you to experience Advent at your local Episcopal (Anglican) Church...

"Virtual Greenbelt" Now on the Internet

by Barry Bernstein

Greenbelt can now be visited instantly anywhere around the world with the help of "Virtual Greenbelt," an Internet site containing images, interviews and other materials related to the city.

Virtual Greenbelt owes its existence to Professor Jo Paoletti's frustration with the limits of the traditional classroom. Paoletti, as American Studies faculty member of the University of Maryland, was teaching a course in "material culture: the use of objects to interpret the human experience." The final project for her students was to prepare an exhibit — a display, actually. The students had no advance time to set up exhibits, and 25 or 30 displays overflowed the space and were difficult to visit and evaluate. Paoletti expressed her frustration to a colleague, outlining her dream: a computerized exhibit gallery where students create and display their projects over the span of an entire semester, with time for feedback and revision.

Website Born

The website she created is an ongoing project developed by the Department of American Studies at the University of Maryland, College Park. It is also a collaboration with the Greenbelt Museum, which houses many of the historical items noted on the site.

Visually, the site is pleasing. It offers pictures from Greenbelt's past, including the building of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway through Greenbelt in 1954, pictures of Greenbelt municipal employees, and an array of other notable pictures related to the city.

"The site offers a rich body of primary resources for classes studying 20th century domestic life and progressive urban planning ideas, and provides publicity and education outreach for the real Greenbelt community," said Mary Sies, an associate professor of American Studies, as reported in a publication by the Arts and Humanities Department at the University of Maryland. Virtual Greenbelt also offers the chance for students to have hands-on experience in research and methods to give presentations to the public. The site houses many student projects from the University of Maryland, some of them containing a wealth of information about daily life in Greenbelt, accessible to a wide audience.

First Stage

The website is currently in its first stage of a two-tiered project. The first stage houses the pedagogical platform that the Department of American Studies uses to teach web-based courses involving students in primary research projects focusing on "historic" Greenbelt. The second stage will provide a virtual Greenbelt Museum.

"I think that Virtual Greenbelt compares favorably to the 50th anniversary book on Greenbelt, for anyone who is curious about the town's origins and early years. And for learning about daily life in a modest town in the 1930s and 1940s, I'm not sure it has much competition, at least online," said Paoletti.

Visitors to the website will get a clear picture of past

Assisted Living Concept Explored by Task Force

by Barry Bernstein

"People have had to leave Greenbelt for reasons of inadequate care. I see our charge as enabling people to live in Greenbelt," Alexander Barnes, Sr., Assisted Living Task Force member, said.

The Assisted Living Task Force met on December 6 in the Greenbelt Community Center to discuss several options for assisted living for senior citizens of Greenbelt. The task force was established by the Greenbelt City Council to determine the feasibility, including need for establishing an assisted living facility in Greenbelt. If the task force recommends such a facility it is also charged with recommending a range of options for providing it, including consideration of city sponsorship. The November 1997 election questionnaire showed that 68% of respondents foresaw a need for assisted living and 65% responded that a task force should be established to study the feasibility of establishing assisted living options in Greenbelt.

During the meeting, voting members of the committee,

Greenbelt, known as one of three "green towns" built during President Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration, and present Greenbelt which is attempting to control urban sprawl and an overabundance of traffic. The site can be visited on the Internet at <http://www.otal.umd.edu/~vg>.

staff liaisons and advisory members (non-voting) gave their input on the future of assisted living care and what should be done for the growing elderly population in the city.

The committee had mixed emotions about whether assisted living should be maintained at individual homes or at facilities that provide the care or both. Currently Avery Gardens, an assisted living care facility, is being built on Greenbelt Road, just east of the city.

Committee members were anxious to move forward but were reluctant to do so because of the complexity of the issue. "It is stepping-stone progress," said Christal Batey, Adult Care Center of Washington administrator and committee advisory member. "Even the experts of both profit and non-profit care are struggling to get the perfect assisted-living structure."

Committee member Helen Geller said, "I feel that we should try a modest approach. When I was interviewed by city council to be a committee member, we were talking about making (existing) structures into assisted living facilities." "Home care is based on an hourly rate and is not that much less expensive than an assisted-living center that has a contract with a professional care agency," Cassie Triplett Avery Gardens' advisory liaison said.

Gathering Information

The idea of using a mailing list company to gather demographic information from Greenbelt citizens including age and income was discussed by the members.

In March 1998, Triplett said to the committee, "We sent out a feasibility study to a number of residents in Prince George's County which told us there was a need for assisted care in the area."

Members of the committee discussed the possibility of recommending that a city care coordinator be hired to get feedback from Greenbelt citizens that may need such assistance. A coordinator would act as a social worker with a wealth of knowledge about assisting the elderly.

The committee plans to explore whether to pursue this idea with Council at the next meeting on January 3. Its mission is to have a full report on assisted care by next October.

Cheerleaders Bring Home CYO Trophies

by Marion Holland

At the annual CYO Cheerleading Competition, held at Largo High School on November 20, the St. Hugh's Cheerleading Squads made quite a show.

The Rookie Squad, consisting of nine first and second graders, impressed both the crowd and the judges with their outstanding performance. They brought home a first place trophy for their efforts. The captain, Devin Fendlay, was awarded a first place medal for her leadership abilities.

The Varsity Squad is made up of nine third through seventh grade girls. Their performance, against tough competition, earned them a third place trophy. Stephanie Holland, captain of the Varsity Squad, took home a third place medal for her ability to lead her squad.

The squad practices two, sometimes three, times a week, working very hard to perfect their routines. They are to be commended for their ability to balance of both their academics and this strenuous sport.

Bally Total Fitness has announced that anyone donating a new toy to the Toys for Tots campaign at any of its designated fitness centers will receive a 30-day guest pass to work out at Bally Total Fitness. Bally's fitness centers will serve as collection points for the Marine Corps' annual Toys for Tots program.

In Greenbelt, new, unwrapped toys for the Toys for Tots collection should be brought to Bally Total Fitness at 7415 Greenbelt Road, in Greenway Center. Toys should be brought to the facility by Tuesday, December 21 and put in the Toys for Tots box in the reception area.

Bally's support of the Toys for Tots program is one of the company's "Stronger Communities" initiatives, a program through which Bally donates reconditioned fitness equipment, unused fitness apparel and fitness center memberships to organizations serving the communities where Bally operates clubs. Since the program began Bally has donated more than $10 million worth of fitness equipment, apparel and memberships to inner city schools, youth-at-risk programs, boys and girls clubs, police athletic leagues and other community service organizations.

"Spirit Week" Raises Funds for Charities

Anyone who had a chance to drive by St. Hugh's Catholic School near the beginning of October may have noticed some early preparation for Halloween. The school celebrated "Spirit Week" and the entire student body had a great time. The Student Government Association developed the project combining service to others and fun. Each day of the week had a theme and money was raised for various charities.

The week began with "career day." For a donation, the children could come dressed in the attire of the career of their choice, with the money given to the American Red Cross.

Tuesday was "pajama day," with all children in flannels and bathrobes. The money raised was sent to Children's Hospital.

"Twins day" was the theme for Wednesday, in which everyone chose a buddy to dress alike. The Boys and Girls Club of America was the beneficiary of this day. Blue and white were the predominant colors on Thursday. "School colors day" raised money for the Kiko Fund (Steve "Kiko" Gingell).

Finally, Friday arrived for the most spirited event, "crazy hair day." Everyone was amazed to see the different hair styles, colors, and adornments worn throughout the day.

The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation was the real winner of this day.

Principal Liz Whelan proclaimed the project a great success. The children were able to show school spirit and help others at the same time.

The American Red Cross came out to the school during the following week and was presented with an oversized check representing the school's donation. The children enjoyed hearing how their donation would help many people around the country. More service-oriented activities are being planned for the students of St. Hugh's.

by Mary Moien

New Prince George's County Schools Superintendent Iris T. Metts has initiated a number of changes since her appointment last summer. One of these has been the consolidation of school clusters within the county. Until recently, Dr. Gerald Boarman, principal, Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS), was the Chief Educational Administrator (CEA) for the ERHS community of schools. All of the Greenbelt schools were in this cluster, as well as a small number of other facilities. The ERHS cluster no longer exists and Dr. Boarman has returned full-time as principal.

Dr. Metts has reorganized the clusters of schools into five much larger groupings with a regional director for each. Greenbelt schools are in Region II and Dr. Eleanor White was named the Region II Director. The other high school clusters her region includes are Bladensburg, DuVal and Fairmont Heights. Five middle schools and 25 elementary schools are part of the region.

Dr. White was recently profiled in the school system's Employee News. She has a career with county schools that spans more than two decades. She was the CEA for the Gwynn Park community of schools and also has served as principal, vice principal and teacher at Gwynn Park High School. Dr. White also served as Acting Human Resources Director in the school system. She has a doctorate of education in educational leadership.

The school system has stated that the regional directors were selected for their administrative leadership, financial prowess, and team spirit. Among her many responsibilities, Dr. White is responsible for serving as an initial contact to parents and the community for the superintendent.

Dr. White has developed a theme for her region - "The New Millennium: Rigor and Relevance." She has stated, "I believe our instructional program has to be relevant and rigorous in order to improve student achievement." Her office is at Robert Goddard Middle School. She can be reached at 301-429-8900.

Area Schools Upbeat on Success Stories

by Nelda Young

At the Advisory Committee on Education's (ACE) principal reception on December 6, Eleanor White, director of Region II, gave an upbeat five-minute keynote address. Representatives from Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS), Greenbelt Elementary School, Springhill Lake Elementary, Magnolia Elementary, and St. Hugh's Parochial School listened before sharing their wish lists and success stories.

During her first 90 days in office White has visited 30 of the 39 schools in Region II in an attempt to get to know the schools and people in her region. White told the ACE members the Prince George's County schools need volunteers, tutors, and mentors.

White said the focus during this initial period for Dr. Iris T. Metts, superintendent of schools, is mathematics and reading, two of the original three R's. Their goal is to use teams as a bridge to success for the students of today in grades K-16, reaching into their adulthood.

The school representatives say they are excited about their pilot programs, grants, and dynamic teachers. Local schools are using grant money to hire teachers, but they see a dark cloud on the horizon. They hear talk that Prince George's County budgets may move backward from school-based to formula-based calculations. They fear that such formulas will steal their "purchased" teachers and reassign them to schools with fewer teachers. If this happens, the local teacher-to-student ratios, which are currently low, would skyrocket.

Space is another topic of concern for the local schools. They do not have enough. They report that every square inch of space is used all day every day. Vice Principal John Enkiri of ERHS says they currently have 22 temporary buildings, and still need more.

One administrator proposed a dream package where mentors would work one-on-one with students in a secure space. Perhaps schoolrooms could be made available at night, was a suggestion she offered. A volunteer coordinator could match the students and mentors to create a workable schedule. As she continued to think out loud, she suggested older students could participate in the program and earn community service hours for their efforts.

Other Options

What else can the community do? Wire the schools for internet service. Create a plan to wire the unwired schools, such as Springhill Lake, and implement the plan. Greenbelt residents, University of Maryland students or even classes, and ERHS students were suggested as possible sources for managers and workers.

Principal Phyllis Gillens of Magnolia told of cutting deals and creating partnerships with businesses in an attempt to help her school. Home Depot has donated seven laser jet printers to Magnolia and the school is trying to locate a storage facility for them. Gillens says she currently has five businesses that are her schools' working partners.

Principal Liz Whelan relayed St. Hugh's success stories. She says they are using a buddy system with older students tutoring the younger ones. Also they are raising money through booster clubs, alumni, and the community.

Springhill Lake made an unusual request. Their students may voluntarily wear a uniform to school including a white shirt. The school needs new or used white, collared shirts to distribute to their needy students. Shirts of all sizes would be useful.

SHL School News

The children at Springhill Lake (SHL) School had many interesting experiences during the first quarter of the school year. The kindergarten classes used apples to perform many math tasks such as sorting, graphing, counting, as well as tasting! A field trip to Darrow Berry Farm was both a fun and learning experience.

Owens Science Center provided third graders with scientific experiments in "Water, Water Everywhere" so they could use a sling psychrometer to find the humidity in the air. They also explored the traits of solids, liquids, and gases as they made clouds in a bubble.

Fifth graders attended Camp Schmidt in October for two days and one night for a great outdoor environment program emphasizing problem-solving skills. Trips to the Baltimore Museum of Industry and Watkins Nature Center have also provided the children with hands-on activities.

The computer lab is open to all students from first grade to fifth grade. Children are working with writing processing, graphics programs, printing projects, and analytical skills and efficiency.

Congratulations to Vane Fykes, Kevin Jackson, Steven Savavong, and Steven Chatman who attended the Science Trek at Prince George's Community College on October 16 for a fun, interesting, and informative day.

Parents were treated to a special program called "Pastries for Parents" with special speaker Darren Swain, State Delegate. Many good ideas for helping children succeed in school were discussed. Parents were also provided with "Second Step Parent Program" to help their children know how to handle conflicts.

Hoyer Announces New Teachers Funds

Congressman Steny H. Hoyer has announced Prince George's County Schools will receive $2.37 million in federal funding to pay for new teachers in order to reduce class sizes. The money for the Class Size Reduction Initiative is included in the Fiscal Year 2000 Omnibus Appropriations Act, which was recently signed by President Clinton.

The Class Size Reduction Initiative is designed to help public schools hire new, well-prepared teachers to reduce the average class size in the early grades to 18 students per classroom. Studies have shown that smaller classes raise the level of student achievement, improve classroom discipline, and ensure that children are receiving the personal attention they need. Maryland schools need this funding because it is estimated that over the past ten years enrollment in Maryland public schools increased by 22.8 percent.

This would require a special exception since the existing R-30 zoning of the tract (multi-family low density - 10 units per acre), would permit only one 30-unit apartment building.

ADC contends that "...the traffic density of 60 age-restricted units will be less than that of R-30 (garden style units) because of the age-restricted usage" and "The issue of school capacity will not be a factor..." The proposal provides "80 parking spaces" for the adult buildings.

Community Response

In his November 10 letter to Robert Crecco, president of the Westchester Park Civic Association, Shipley said, "With the deadline imposed by the seller, it would be appreciated if the community could respond to this proposal as quickly as possible."

To address the latest development proposal, an ad hoc committee of community residents was formed with Crecco at the helm. After discussing the issue at two meetings, Crecco responded to Shipley. In his letter of November 23 Crecco pointed out that (1) the majority of respondents to a community survey "opposed all development — including development allowed by current zoning" for both the 3.7 and 17.4-acre parcels and (2) "if development were to occur on the 3.7 acres, the majority of respondents would find most acceptable 30 units" as permitted by the existing R-30 zoning (no special exception). For the 17.4-acre parcel, respondents found "most acceptable 35 units of single family detached houses per current RR zoning."

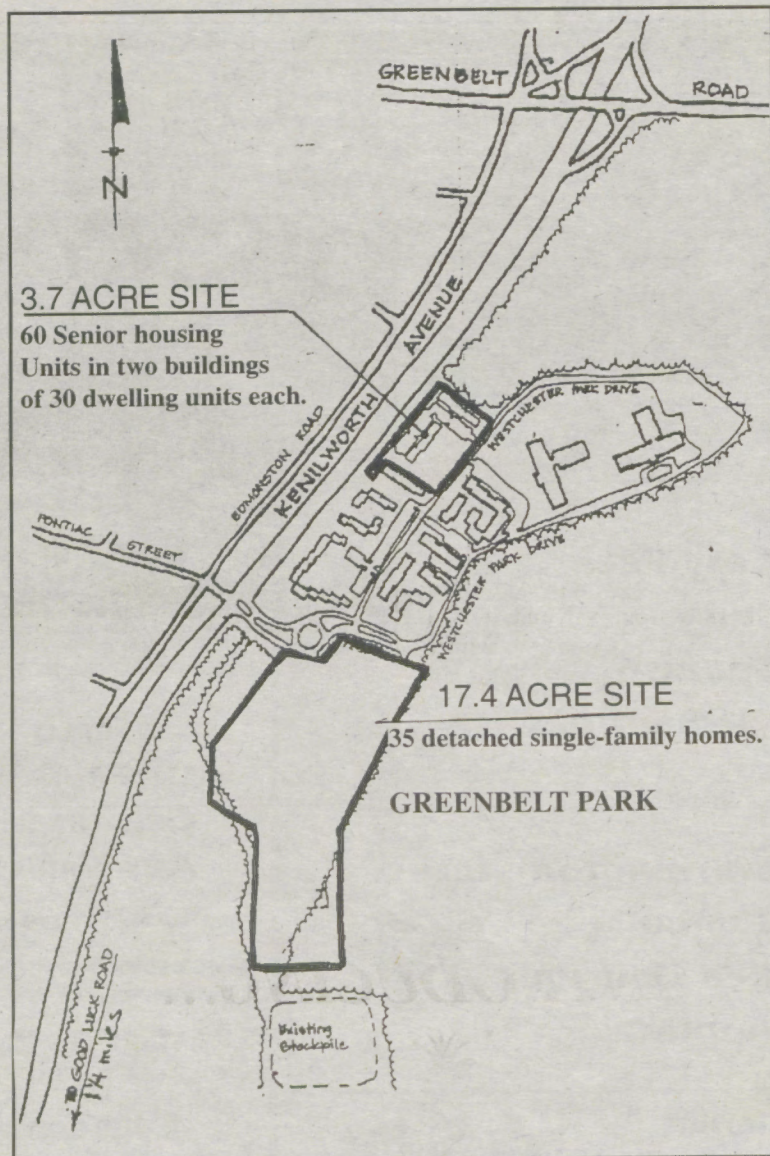

"We have every right to expect these lands to remain undeveloped," argued Ceal Franz, president of Westchester Park's multi-family townhouse/apartment condominium. She cites the brochures given to purchasers which promised the development would be "surrounded on three sides by permanent Parkland protected forever from further residential development."

Greenbelt's Position

The City of Greenbelt is already on record as opposing all development on the two parcels. Over the years, past and present councils have consistently requested the Federal government to purchase the parcels "to protect the park's boundaries and eliminate the threat of development."

In response to a letter by Mayor Judith Davis dated October 1, 1999, U.S. Senator Barbara Mikulski reported that she had requested the National Park Service to respond to the city. U.S. Senator Paul Sarbanes, responding to the city, noted that, while he shared Greenbelt's view, there was "extremely limited" federal funding. Sarbanes said he is pressing for legislation that would expand funding for both federal and state parkland acquisition. He encouraged the city to explore potential sources of funding offered by the State of Maryland.

In a statement to the News Review, Congressman Steny H. Hoyer said: "As you may know, I am a strong supporter of smart, controlled growth and I share the City of Greenbelt's concern regarding possible future development of the Jaeger tract. I will continue to work with city officials to seek workable solutions, whether that means state, local or federal funding for this property.

The statement continued, "A member of my staff met with the City Council, the City Manager and the City Clerk on March 31 of last year to discuss this issue. At that time, we expressed our willingness to work with the City on the potential purchase of the Jaeger Tract and we suggested that the City pursue several avenues for funding for the land. I look forward to continuing to work with the City to move this project forward."

In support of Greenbelt's position, Chairman John Schaffer of the New Carrollton

City Council sent letters to Mikulski, Sarbanes and Congressman Albert Wynn opposing development of the parcels and calling for "subsequent conversion of the land to parkland." Berwyn Heights Mayor William Armistead's letter to Congressman Hoyer stated: "The Town believes the Federal government should purchase this property to protect the park's boundaries and eliminate the possibility that unsuitable development would occur placing increased pressures on the area's traffic congestion, schools and infrastructure."

NEW YEAR

music all night long for listening and/or for singing. Dave Schulman will give up his juggling skills at the Community Center and move to the Youth Center to conduct a swing dance lesson, followed by a dance to get those bodies moving. The Youth Center will also host kids bingo, always a very popular activity.

The Arts Center will be presenting a delightful children's play — "The Hippo Who Wanted to Be a Ballerina" — starring children but for audiences of all ages! The progressive rock band, Peroxide, will end the evening in the Arts Center with their hot, edgy sounds.

Theater, New Deal Cafe

The Old Greenbelt Theatre will host Eric Henning, magician extraordinaire, who will dazzle the audience with his wonderful illusions and mystical magic in three great shows. The New Deal Cafe will provide entertainment and delicious food, all night long. Tickets can be purchased at the Community Center now through December 25. Children under five are free. For information call 301-397-2208. Tickets purchased later or at the door cost slightly more.

Petition Drive

Meanwhile the Westchester Park Civic Association is organizing a petition drive and letter writing campaign requesting Federal or State purchase of the property for incorporation into Greenbelt Park. In an effort to wield more control over land use within Westchester Park, Joe Haskell, board member of the association and the 6100 Towers condominium, is gathering information dealing with the advantages and disadvantages of the incorporation of Westchester Park as a municipality. Currently, Westchester Park is an unincorporated community.

Overall, the designated New American High Schools have achieved higher college attendance rates, higher SAT and state test scores, higher graduation rates, and lower drop out rates. The schools have also forged active partnerships with universities and colleges to better prepare their students.

ERHS has six career pathway academies. "The shared vision for the school's community has been that each student is unique and that as a member of a caring community of lifelong learners, each student will be able to identify, prepare for, and realize his or her goals," Dr. Boarman said.

Two Million Granted To Teach Technology

The Maryland Higher Education Commission has awarded $2 million in grants to colleges and universities to teach faculty to use technology in the classroom. The grants, part of a two-year program, will provide training to more than 6,000 faculty members at 37 colleges and universities and two higher education centers.

"Technology is creating new opportunities for Marylanders to take advantage of the state's excellent colleges and universities on their own schedule and without having to travel great distances," the Secretary of Higher Education, Patricia S. Florestano, said. "But to take full advantage of technology's promise, we have to give faculty the training and tools they need to use it."

Florestano said that 17 collaborative proposals were submitted for funding and nine selected to receive funds beginning this year. Among these was Prince George's Community College, which will work under a $700,000 grant as part of a consortium under the University of Maryland University College. A total of 3,101 faculty participants will receive training in this consortium.

"Operation Midnight" Combats Juvenile Crime

by Barry Bernstein

Some time ago the City of Greenbelt Police Department implemented Operation Midnight, a program focused on juvenile crime and victimization that helps parents prevent their children from coming into contact with crime as a suspect or a victim.

The program models a similar curfew enacted by the city of Laurel in 1996 which requires that all minors under the age of 17 should not remain in any public place or any "establishment" between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m. without the presence of a parent or guardian, according to the City of Laurel Ordinance N. 1189.

Also, the program is an extension of the Prince George's County Curfew Code which restricts the time that people under the age of 17 can be in a public area during week nights, Sunday to Thursday, 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. as well as weekend nights, Friday and Saturday, midnight to 5 a.m.

Greenbelt's Operation Midnight allows police officers to stop children under the age of seventeen, contact their parents and take them home if they are found to be walking the streets and/or the parking lots of Greenbelt between midnight and 6 a.m. seven days a week. The parents give written permission to do so prior to any action taken by the police. This is not a curfew law and therefore is not subject to the Constitutional questions or challenges which pertain to curfew laws, according to a memo written by Greenbelt Police Chief James R. Craze.

"Most parents are cooperative to the program, especially when dealing with older children who tend to be more adventurous about staying outside after midnight. People see the kids, complain, and officers respond to those complaints," Greenbelt Police Officer Master Patrol Officer (MPO-Public Information Officer) George Mathews said.

There are several procedures that police officers follow when carrying out Operation Midnight, according to Mathews.

First the officer will call out on their police radio whenever contacting a juvenile, giving the location, race, and sex of the juvenile being stopped. The officer must always treat the child with dignity and in a friendly manner, according to Mathews. Also, the officer must check with police dispatch to see if the child's parent/guardian has an "Operation Midnight" agreement with the police department. Following the routine check, the officer contacts the parents and must comply with whatever decision the parent makes for the child, according to Mathews.

Many citizens are aware of the program and its impact on the community.

"If a person that is outside late at night has a certain look about them, then the police are more likely to apprehend that person," Jason Flanagan, Greenbelt resident, said.

"I feel parents should be more responsible taking care of their children. The curfew should be from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.; 12 midnight is not enough," Patrick Whelan, Greenbelt resident, said.

Students at Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) do not tend to be in favor of Operation Midnight.

"It isn't fair...why should adults be able to go out after midnight, yet some of them act like children," Rosa Salazar, ERHS student, said. "We should be able to take walks when we want," she said.

"I don't think it is fair because police shouldn't be the ones to tell you when to go home; it should be up to your parents," Audrey Brlansky, ERHS student, said.

Parents in Greenbelt can register their children with the Greenbelt Police Department by picking up an Operation Midnight form available at the Greenbelt Police Headquarters, 550 Crescent Road and at the City Administration Building, 25 Crescent Road. Individuals with questions about the program can call Officer George Mathews, at 301-507-6515.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts also participated in the event. Davis was Roberts' spotter in a dump truck equipped with a snow plow that was larger than any of Greenbelt's trucks.

"I felt there was excellent opposition and an opportunity for the various snow removal teams to get to know each other and have fun while in a friendly competition," Mayor Davis said. "I think this was a very positive competition. It was a very good way to meet people from different jurisdictions who are involved with snow removal and it is a great way to start out the winter season," said Ken Hall, acting director of Greenbelt's Public Works Department.

All of the competitions took place at the Redskins Stadium parking lot.

the curb like a choker.” He noted that the proposed parking restrictions would not cover all the hours during which there are conflicts between motorists, parked cars and bus riders. Putens suggested a curb cut-in, and Davis, as a compromise, suggested restricting parking at just two of the spaces.

But the hour was getting late, there were concerns about whether the proposed approaches were too difficult for the buses (in which case the drivers were likely to continue stopping in the street), and council decided to toss the hot potato back into the lap of city staff.

Pension Shift

Council unanimously approved converting employees hired since 1980 from the state pension plan to a new state contributory program. The new program will provide 30-year employees with 42 percent of current earnings. Under the old program such employees would receive 24 to 36 percent of current earnings. However, employees will have to contribute two percent of their salaries to the state program. To minimize the impact, employees have the option of reducing their contribution to their deferred compensation accounts by two percent of salary without affecting the amount of the city’s match.

State employees converted to this new program in July, 1998, but municipalities were given time to decide whether to join or stay with the old program. (City expenses under the plan will also increase by 0.4 percent of employees’ salaries.)

Employees can increase their future benefits by paying a one-time fee to be credited with service under this new program as of July 1998. The city will offer employees the option of either making this payment in a single lump sum or through payroll deductions over the next year which, as Turnbull pointed out, amounts to an interest-free loan to employees.

Other Actions

As part of the consent agenda, council granted city employees an extra personal day to be used by June 30, 2000. Some form of extra holiday has been granted to employees since December 1969.

Council reappointed Sheldon Goldberg and Joyce Chestnut to the Advisory Planning Board and Joseph Griffith to the Employee Relations Advisory Board, appointed Andy Levin to the Advisory Committee on Education and accepted the resignation of Judith Holland from the Arts Advisory Board.

As required as a condition of $925,000 in state grants received by the city, council authorized Davis to sign a preservation easement on the Community Center that gives the Maryland Historical Trust a perpetual easement on the exterior shell of the building and on the interior of the first floor of the original 1937 building.

Volunteer Center Seeks Volunteers

The Prince George’s County Volunteer Center, a volunteer recruitment and referral service for the county, is seeking office aides to help with a variety of projects around the office. For more information, call Dan at 301-699-2800.

Public Input Sought On School Enrollment

The Prince George’s County Planning Board of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC) has scheduled three public hearings to solicit public comment on school enrollment projections developed by M-NCPPC planners for 2000 - 2005. The hearings will be held at 11 a.m., during the Planning Board’s regularly scheduled Thursday meetings, on December 16 and January 6 and will take place in the Fourth Floor Hearing Room of the County Administration Building in Upper Marlboro. Public testimony will be heard at the December 16 meeting; final analysis and recommendations will be presented on January 6. Written comments will be accepted until December 23.

The purpose of the hearings is to provide the public with an understanding of the methodology used to arrive at school enrollment projections; to review the five-year projections to be used in 2000 for each school; and to obtain public input before the projections are finalized.

A discussion paper prepared by M-NCPPC planners, “Adequate Public Facilities for Schools in Prince George’s County,” which describes the current methodology used in calculating enrollment projections, is available to the public. The M-NCPPC draft enrollment projections for 2000 - 2005 became available December 1. For copies of the discussion paper or draft projections, or for additional information on the public hearings, call the M-NCPPC Prince George’s County Planning Department at 301-952-4712; TTY 301-952-3796.

State Offers Help On Medicare Choices

More than 15,000 Marylanders are dealing with questions regarding insurance coverage in the wake of Medicare HMO withdrawals and loss of prescription drug coverage. The Maryland Department of Aging has initiated a statewide, toll-free call center, operating Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Medicare beneficiaries are encouraged to call 1-800-AGE-DIAL (1-800-243-3425), to obtain information and referrals to trained counselors. The Call Center will continue to operate until December 31, 1999.

Anyone currently enrolled in an HMO which has withdrawn from Medicare is advised not to drop out of their current plan before December 31, 1999, or they may lose the right to purchase Medicare supplemental insurance without submitting to a medical examination. They should also continue to use the covered health care services provided through their current plan.

The Maryland Insurance Administration (1-800-492-6116) and the Medicare hotline (1-800-638-6833) can also provide information on traditional Medicare, Medicare HMOs, Medigap, and beneficiary rights. Internet users can visit the Medicare website www.medicare.gov.

GREENBELT AQUATIC & FITNESS CENTER 2000 WINTER SESSION

In-person registration, first-come, first-served basis. All classes have a limit on enrollment. Early registration improves your chances of getting the class you want!! All registrants must sign up at the Greenbelt Aquatic & Fitness Center for aquatic & fitness classes.

CLASS FEES: All class fees are noted in the course list. A 10% discount will be given to all senior citizens, 60 years old and over, for non-senior classes.

REFUNDS: The Greenbelt Aquatic & Fitness Center reserves the right to cancel classes due to insufficient registrants or causes beyond its control. Refunds will be made if classes are canceled by the Center. Other refunds will be made according to the provisions in the City of Greenbelt Resolution No. 65, which also requires that refund requests, for valid reasons, are to be submitted immediately in writing to the GAFC.

CITY RESIDENCY: Greenbelt residents are those who pay taxes to the City of Greenbelt AND are eligible to vote in City elections. That is as it should be, as our residents pay taxes to support the Recreation Centers and the Aquatic & Fitness Center in our community. However, just because someone has a Greenbelt address, does not necessarily mean they pay taxes to the City of Greenbelt and are able to vote in City elections. We want to be fair to the people whose tax money supports our programs. If you are not sure that you have a Greenbelt address, are able to vote in City elections, and pay City taxes, call 301-397-2204.

All registrants registering as a resident non-passholder must show proof of address to receive Greenbelt resident status. Acceptable Proof: Valid license or current lease.

MAINSTREAMING: Anyone who is physically, mentally, and/or emotionally challenged is encouraged to participate in any of the Aquatic & Fitness Center’s programs. If you need any special assistance, please call 301-397-2208 or TTY 301-474-1811 and ask for Karen Haseley.

Concerto: Exhibit At Montpelier

Montpelier Resident Artist Sahomi Naka will be featured in the Resident Artists' Gallery during the month of December in an exhibition of unique prints that explore the essence of nature.

Naka's prints capture the fleeting moments experienced in nature by expressing the ability of nature to inspire the human spirit. The knowledge that emotions are both simulated by and unified with nature is the "concerto" at the heart of these prints.

Sahomi Naka was born in the ancient capital city of Kyoto, Japan, where she studied music and Japanese calligraphy. She studied printmaking at the University of Maryland, College Park. She has shown extensively and locally has exhibited at the American Museum of Women's Art, Corcoran Gallery of Art and Dumbarton Gallery.

Opening this year's Festival of Lights, members of the Greenbelt Combined Choirs and children join in caroling at the tree lighting ceremony outside the Greenbelt Municipal Building.

Festival of Lights Lures Local Families

by Nelda Young

The Greenbelt Festival of Lights is truly a family affair. At the Friday night tree-lighting outside the Municipal Building, all ages came to sing carols, drink coffee or cocoa, eat cookies, see the decorations, and meet Santa.

Greenbelter Angela Miotto brought the family. Her daughter Ginina said, "There's no tree lighting as nice as this in Rockville." Ginina brought her four-year-old son, Zachary, to meet Santa. That night she called her son Rudolph because he wore reindeer horns and knew the words to Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer. Unfortunately, "Rudolph" was not giving interviews. Ginina said, "Zachary knows Santa is coming." Zach's Aunt Diana and eight-month-old cousin Garrett came to see Santa, too.

Zach's reindeer horns were a gift from P. J. Siegel, who claims Greenbelt as her lifelong residence, except for time served in the military. Her daughter Shaine, Little Miss Greenbelt, came on official business. She and the other Misses Greenbelt helped Santa hand out candy canes. Christmas is a busy season for them. Saturday they assisted Santa at his Fire House breakfast. Shaine will perform in the Greenbelt Arts Center's "The Hippopotamus Who Wanted To Be A Classic Ballerina." And, for the ten days prior to Christmas, she will be gift wrapping at Beltway Plaza.

Barbara Molyneux, a transplanted retired high school math teacher from Albany, New York, came to the event because she thought it would be fun. She is an outgoing person who likes to get involved in the community. During her three years in Greenbelt she has volunteered to work at the housing cooperative and with the finance committee. Why did she choose to move here? Her son lives in Washington. Even if he moves away, she said she will stay in Greenbelt because she likes it.

The only person this reporter could find who admitted he had talked to Santa was Mike Yang. He said, "Initially I was afraid of Santa. But when I talked to him, I found out he's a nice, regular guy." Mike is 28 years old.

Sophia Kean, 11-year-old niece of Mary Lou Williamson, did not talk to Santa. However, when opportunity knocked, she reached out her hand and accepted one of Santa's large red-and-white-striped candy canes, which she planned to eat while doing her homework. On Saturday she planned to speak to Santa personally at the firehouse breakfast and tell him she wants Bath and Body Works "stuff" for Christmas. For the uninformed, "stuff" means lotion, hair gel, nail polish, and things like that.

Adults in the crowd reminised about Christmases past—they spoke of a hemlock tree in North Carolina that was well received and a Norfolk pine that was not. Santa seemed flexible on the subject of trees but made it clear that the children had better be good or they would not get presents this year.

Craft Fair Offers Many Things

by Dennis Jelalian

The craft fair held in the Community Center December 4 and 5 offered a smorgasbord of wonderful goodies. To prevent confusion, I've interviewed three of the vendors.

Phyllis G. Hall, of the District, makes quilts that fold into pillows. She had them in a wide variety of fabrics. Hall said that the design goes back to 1972. She is the third in the tradition of making the quilts. She said it takes her about five hours to make one.

Ron Edmundson's business card says that he makes canes, incense holders, and necklaces. Ron goes into the woods looking for interesting shapes in wood. He takes them home and seasons them for four to five months. Then he soaks them in linseed oil for two days. He may sand or carve the wood before or after staining the wood. He's very free form about his work. He says, "See what you want to see."

He lets the work suggest how he treats it. "Lines look good."

Mike and Sheilah Worrell have a one-two punch. Sheilah makes handknit items and one of a kind jewelry. They have separate business cards. Hers says "a division of Outback Bee Products."

Mike is the bee keeper. Besides several types of honey, he offers bee's wax, bee's wax hand cream, bee's wax candles, and perhaps most surprising, pollination. When asked how many hives he kept, he said about 50, but they are scattered over a wide area up Route 83 near Pennsylvania. We don't often think how important pollination may be. Mike has made a business selling pollination services to farmers.

Mike's elderberry honey has won two first prizes. One from the Maryland State Fair at Timonium, and the other from the Maryland State Beekeepers 63rd annual honey show in 1999.
